The market continued higher powered by the resurgence of Big Cap technology.

Here is the Nasdaq 100 (NDX) chart.

Now look at the relative chart of the Technology Sector vs the NDX, it is decidedly underperforming, which means that the NDX is outperforming the Technology Sector. Since more than 50% of the Technology Sector is made up of just 3 names (AAPL, MSFT, & NVDA), that means that the rest of the index is significantly underperforming.

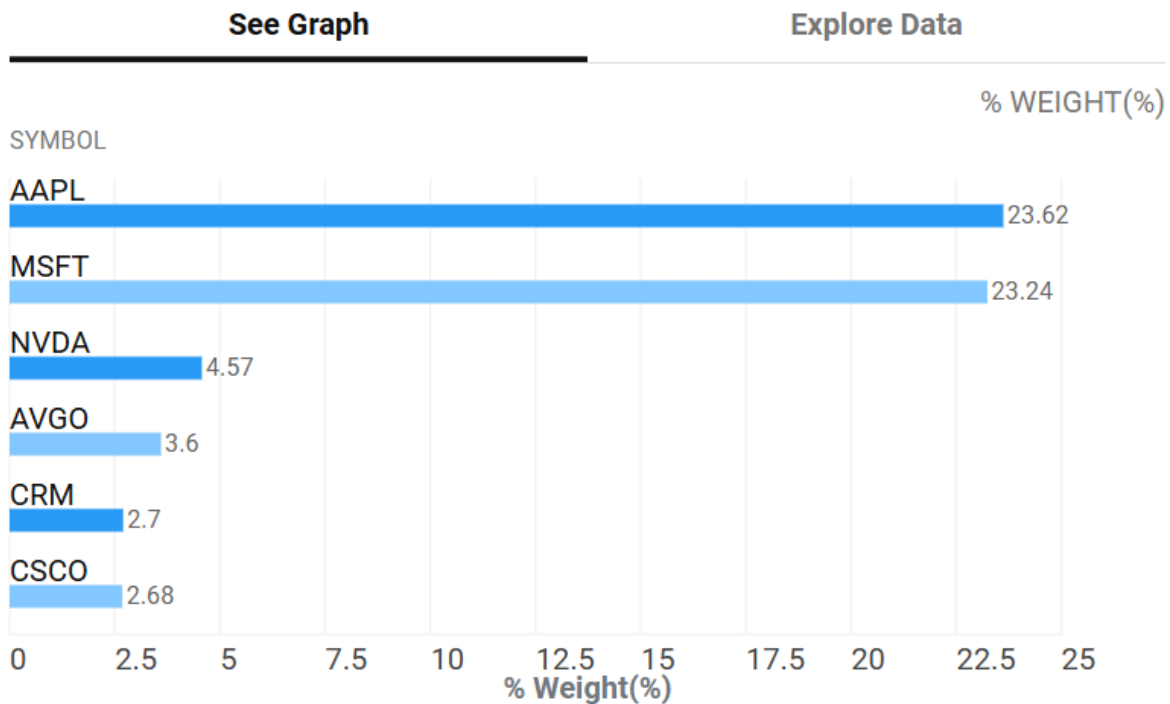

Here is Technology (XLK) vs NDX.

The NDX just made a new high (see above), but it looks like it did so based on just a few stocks.

10-Minute Charts for the week:

From RIA:

Trump Election Sends NFIB Optimism Surging - RIA

Santa Comes Later In December

Technically speaking, the market did register a short-term MACD sell signal last week, which could exert further downward pressure on stocks into next week. With relative strength not oversold, there is some risk of the market declining toward the 20-DMA by the time the Fed announces its next rate cut on Wednesday. However, barring any unexpected events, the market should be able to rally into year-end with a target of 6100 to 6150.

Small Cap Stocks – Look At Me Now

As I noted at the outset, there was previously a rather significant gap between small and mid-capitalization stocks, as represented by the iShares Russell 2000 Index (IWM) and the annual change in the NFIB index. Given the historical correlation, one would eventually catch up with the other. In this case, the market expected a Trump win, with IWM running well ahead of NFIB sentiment. Since the election, that gap has now closed, with sentiment surging higher.

While small and mid-capitalization stocks have surged higher in recent weeks, many risks still plague those companies going forward. As noted previously, roughly 41% of these unprofitable companies are heavily indebted, with a maturity wall approaching over the next two years. If interest rates remain elevated, such could weigh on both refinancing capability and profitability, leading to a pickup in default rates. The problem with surging expectations for economic growth, employment, and wages is that such will sustain inflation and higher interest rates.

41% of companies in the Russell 2000 have negative earnings

Here is the current chart for the Russell 2000 (IWM):
